Health

Many children did not live to adulthood in Tudor and Victorian England. They were malnourished due to poor harvests. Diseases such as smallpox, cholera and the plague spread rapidly. The development of vaccines, antibiotics and medical care has led to children recovering from illnesses.

History - How have children's lives changed?

Tudor frost fair

Victorian fair

Modern fair

During the Tudor period, fairs were held to celebrate saint's days in local towns. Children would have watched jesters walking on stilts, juggling or performing tricks; watched archery demonstrations; bought food; and enjoyed plays. By the Victorian period, there were swingboats and carousels. Today, technology has transformed fairgrounds into huge theme parks.

Lord Shaftesbury 1801-1885

Lord Shaftesbury encouraged the establishment of schools to give working children an education. He also publicised the poor working conditions of children and introduced parliamentary bills to reduce the numbers of hours children worked.

Apprentices

Tudor and Victorian children as young as seven left home to become apprentices. They swore an oath to remain loyal to their master. In return, they received training, food and lodging. Children - mostly boys - trained to become blacksmiths, cobblers, gong farmers, shipmakers, publishers and more.
